Dedication

A range of connections exist at Lick-Wilmerding. Students grow close with their peers and their teachers, creating bonds beyond simple acquaintance. Our connections to others expand even after we leave Lick. One of the most important connections we make in our academic lives is the link to the next level of school, and in our personal lives, to the next stage of maturity. To become a teacher, one has to have patience, understanding, and a range of experiences to bring to the classroom. Here we celebrate a man who has not only met these requirements, but has surpassed them. Nestled in the corner of the college counseling office is a man anticipating the arrival of an anxious student.

Jim Bell has brought to Lick and its students extensive knowledge, a colorful palette of teaching styles, and a warm and inviting personality. Those who have been in his classes will always remember the enthusiasm with which Mr.Bell wholeheartedly dives into each class. We anticipated the days when he would find a tangent to the discussion and enthrall us with a story from his monestary days. During the college counseling process, the seniors have found a new appreciation for Mr. Bell's straightforward, down-to-earth approach to life. Mr. Bell's honesty has been a vital addition to the Lick community. He has been a crucial component in our transition as seniors, making timely decisions a little less threatening. Mr. Bell passes compassion and energy on to each one of us.

Headmaster's Message

Since the Adams Family is a part of the Class of '98, I feel like the Class of '98 is also a part of the Adams family! And, what a fortunate family we are!!

You are an extraordinary collection of individuals - bright, talented, energetic, creative, opimistic, caring... Even more, you have created a real class, a seamless whole. In fact, all of us at Lick have marveled at the way you think about and treat one another. You are, to a person, insightful, generous, spirited and loving, and I have never had a doubt that you would take good care of one another. You truly have negotiated your high school years together.

In addition, you have provided essential leadership at Lick. Most notably, you have helped our community to bridge the old and the new. You have witnessed, critiqued, and adjusted to a host of changes - from the physical plant, to the curriculum, to new teachers. And, nearly always, you have been perceptive and resilient. Always, you have been fair-minded. I thank you for that, since I know that change does not come easily. And yet, somehow, you have been able to put the needs of the larger community above your own interests - a rare phenomenon in this world of ours.

Rest assured that the Class of '98 goes down in the annals of Lick-Wilmerding as an exceptional, highly respected, and well-loved class. Both the Lick family and the Adams family will miss you greatly.

Al Adams
Head of School

Opening

Picture this: it's a gray, drizzly day with no light outside, a day when even the sky seems to be sleeping. But you aren't sleeping. Oh no. You've been up for an hour already, dragging clothes out of your closet or hamper (which ever smells better at six in the morning), LISTENING TO THE RADIO to make sure there's not another BART strike, getting in some last minute cramming for that major test that decides half of your grade. Sometimes it's a surprise that we all make it to Lick each morning. Whether it's a long contemplative ride by BART or car from the East Bay, a last minute dash to your bike at 7:55, a stop and go ride through the city, or a brisk morning stroll. Lick people are never less than creative in matters involving transportation. And somehow, in the last minutes before 8am classes, it all makes a strange kind of sense for us to be here, from places as unique as we are, fresh out of the car, or bus, or bike, or whatever. In a way, our commutes are a microcosm of what everyone here hopes that Lick is, was and will be: Diverse, different, and special.

It's a little odd to change your persona. You're different here. You're the wise guy in the back of the class, the shy girl who never talks, you're the jock, the jerk. You're different. It takes awhile to get your rhythm back, to comprehend the ebb and flow. You feel as if you're at the back of the learning curve, confused, lost, and unclear. You're not, though. Everyone is with you: teachers, students, friends, enemies (well, actually at Lick there are no enemies). They're in there with you, groping for some sort of competence.

-Martin White '98

It started off as a joke on the first day. Ha Ha, I have homework.

And sometimes, at midnight on a Tuesday, mesmerized by the immaculate white of my computer screen, it still seems like a joke. What starts off as a giggle turns into an outright laugh, which then crescendos into a frightening cackle, and you think in your head, "Ha ha, I have homework."

We all do it (most of us, anyway), despite that induced hysteria, raking in the sets of math problems and churning out theses like Aunt Jemima does syrup. When you don't think about it, that hunched position over your Biology book studying for a test feels comfortable and familiar, and not at all like a joke. And when we do think about it, we love it, don't we?

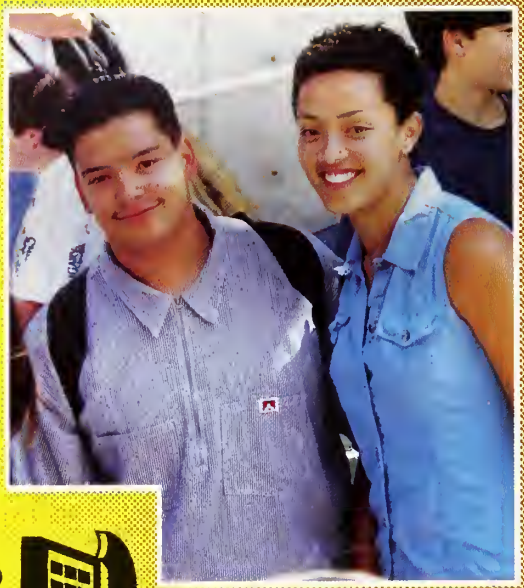
"Late to bed, early to rise" is the motto often used to describe the hectic lives of Lick-Wilmerding students. We find ourselves in dizzying cycles of homework and extracurricular activities, interrupted by the occasional college trip or family reunion. The general sentiment goes something like this: "All we do is work and sleep, work and sleep." But every day around 11 o'clock, the human side of Lick-Wilmerding rears its balding head. Waves of freshmen infiltrate the cafeteria, braving lengthy lines for cups of watermelon and "grilled" cheese. Sophomores seem to grow straight out of the lower hallway to form those infamous "circles" on the field, breaking for the occasional cartwheel or game of football. And after tears of funk inhalation in the cafeteria, juniors and seniors resort to picking any ol' table, patch of concrete, rug, or grass to lay out their edibles. Lunch time at Lick is one phenomenon that cannot be explained by the Pythagorean theorem or the theory of relativity. It is just a little half of an hour that makes us feel that much more alive.

-Julie E. Bernstein



It's Monday and you stumble bleary eyed into the hallway. There was no parking. Your BART train was late. Maybe it was the 43 that ruined your morning. Whatever the reason, by the time you reach your locker, it seems there is nothing that can save your day. As you struggle with your combination lock you feel someone's hand rest on your shoulder. "Hey, how's it going?" Suddenly you are not drowning alone in the Lick-Wilmerding fog. You have a friend.

Over four years you build common ground with the people around you. Chem tests, advising, and afternoons on the field bring you closer together. One day as you walk through the hall you will realize that these memories form a web of connections that you depend on more than anything else. These are your friends. You need them. You love them. Enjoy them.

Believe it or not, relaxation actually comes pretty naturally to the average Lick student. There's a special time we all know and love between the stressful, work-filled school day and the even more stressful homework-filled night. It's called after school. And whether Lickies spend it in the gym watching a basketball game or participating in a discussion at MCA or even at Just Desserts having a cup of coffee, it is the closest thing to a sigh of relief that we have during the school week.

Every student's first assembly is marked by coach Smith recollecting high school days and telling of how he discovered "Spirit." And from his belting out the Lick-hyphen-Wilmerding cheer, E-man's bouncing around in the tiger suit, and the thrashing of the cheap black-and-gold pompoms, it doesn't take a National Merit Scholar to realize what this school thrives on. Every year, Lick is shaped by the energy and spirit of the student body, and this '97-'98 year was no exception.

If love is to be kind, it must be reserved, it must stand back a bit and float outward on the slenderest connecting thread. We are all moths loving the flame, burning ourselves in our stubborn attempts to be part of it, to have it, to own the warmth and the light, which is helpless to keep from burning us when we get too close, and ask too much.

I remember freshman year, I had this dream,
And it has come true, or so it would seem.
I sat at my locker and began to read,
And then time moved by with extraordinary speed.
Freshman to Sophomore to Junior I went
I just sat at my locker until up a class I was sent.
I didn't see anyone, I didn't move 'til summer.
I didn't learn anything (but I didn't become dumber).
Well, it's been a bit like that, fast and a blur,
But there've been lots of people, and classes for sure.
I've learned a whole lot, about people and places.
I've learned to examine behind everyday faces.
I hope I've left something, like music or insight,
As I've sat by my locker between Willis and White.

allison's adventures in Wonderland

Four gansters set out one night and travelled illegally with their bread, milk and cigars to a 1940's post-war commune. They met their friends and took all the lawn toys and peas and had an adventure in Narnia, a wild jungle and on a bus, all in one. One of the friends with a squirt gun wanted to eat the little children, until another discovered that they were sweet things who gave candy. Then they took a walk to a golfing club where another decided to click and spit as they watched all the short fat kids in the playground. It began to pour so they ran to the car, which at least still had all four doors (god bless Texas) and the pharoah read a bedtime story of grasshoppers and little girls. Then they went to sleep. The End.

"...you see things the way YOU ARE."
-Anaïs Nin

So we were driving across the Bay Bridge for the 1,376,000th time and as the Pickle Mobile was absorbed in white clouds of fog... I dreamt last night that David was elected President and the first thing he did was grant a presidential pardon to Willie who bombed the SAT Headquarters, "It is an act that is universally understandable"...The swings at Pacific Heights parks almost carry me to the moon as I shout at pointed buildings "Look out Music City cause I'm here and I ain't never leaving" and Becca drawls "As God is my witness I shall never go hungry again"...Not with Taco Bell and slurpees at 2:30 in the morning...Mario Kart with Ian- he comes in from the rain in a t-shirt and shorts singing Whitney Houston...We were on a mission to find stars, drove all through the night, Danville, San Jose, Los Altos, the fog chased us as Tommy raised thought-provoking questions, "If you decapitate a chicken will it deflate?" Taylor notes that the sky turned red near San Mateo and Aimy points towards a star—no, it's a plane (maybe Pat in his rainbow jet) (maybe Jessy flying to the moon from Pacific Heights swings) (maybe Julie Kline on her way to stardom)... Anyways, Eric passes us in the Black Car, VRROOM... Amy flies on the rope swing in Occidental...Charley sings on the trampoline at Tori's... Tori makes wilderness palaces from sheets and string...We dodge jelly fish with Gardiner in Connecticut...We dodge balls that Matt throws at our heads...Toast the years as they spin by, my turn-your turn...Running with Anna down Geary throwing confetti...Gina makes pies...Erika is a ZOO...Therese's car is MegalaBlue...These are the Occasional Freaks that make up our friends and the places that make up our world...

☆ SORRY ARIEL, I FORGOT YOUR PHOTO ☆

An adventure called Lick-Wilmerding started four short years ago, on September 7, 1994, when I showed up late for assembly and Rosie let me keep my stuff underneath her desk...Kim Wong, Mark Flores and the Admissions Office Crew, stuffing envelopes for our humble little school...Afterschool, it's down to Baskin-Robbins on West Portal with Dana, Renata, and Rosie, and to the St. Vincent de Paul thrift store, to test the sofas, use the exercise equipment, and dress from head to toe in orange..."Good Afternoon, Lick-Wilmerding," living in the front office, and saying "alrighta" to Christina Gwin in the back room...Soon we're sophomores, but Aimy and Julie are here to save the schedule, and to make me turn bright red, laughing on Friday afternoons in Ms. Visser's office...KSOL and Clifford Brown Jr. on the radio...Junior year's all about the journey, finding meaning in each day along the way with Ms. Maisel...Mr. Jones is on Therese's radio as we go get rice after advising...Spying with Gina...Lemon sorbet, Chocolate Chips, and a late night talk with Erika and Megan on a spring Saturday night...It's Midnight and I'm still waiting for the 7F on the corner of Market and 4th, dancing with the skyscrapers and my walkman...Hey Courtney, let's shop the Galleries Lafayette, or sing a little Gerald Levert song by the Seine, if we can only remember it...All of a sudden we're seniors, and Ariel and I are driving around the city in the middle of the night, and watching G. Hill smash the ball for the Giants...Canardo...the Hardcores sit around JoePage, discussing life, headlines, and textwraps as Rachel shouts at J.J....And Amy, I wonder if we'd still be gazing out at the bay and all the lights from the 17th floor if the security guard didn't come and kick us out...It's been quite a ride, following my heart all the way. Love forever to the Class of '98, and to that nervous kid in the backwards Phoenix Suns cap, standing at the edge of the Caf during Freshman Orientation, wondering what it would all be about.

Laugh, and The World Laughs With You

Laugh, and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone;
For this brave old earth must borrow its mirth,
It has trouble enough of its own.
Sing, and the hills will answer;
Sigh! it is lost on the air;
The echoes bound to a joyful sound,
But shrink from voicing care.

Rejoice, and men will seek you;
Grieve, and they turn and go;
They want full measure of all your pleasure,
But they do not want you woe.
Be glad, and your friends are many;
Be sad, and you lose them all-
There are none to decline your nectared wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall.

Feast, and your halls are crowded;
Fast and the world goes by.
Succeed and give, and it helps you live,
But no man can help you die.
There is room in the halls of pleasure
For a long and lordly train:
But one by one we must all file on
Through the narrow aisles of pain.

A Preface: I always swore that I would do a cool senior page that avoided lame pictures and lengthy orations, but I don't get to write in your yearbooks so I had to do it.. To the Townies: We did it, yo. (That was a ghetto add on for emphasis) Not only did we escape the oppression of those who feared that our intellect, manly good looks, and sheer number would take over their school, but we became best friends in the process. In case you have forgotten here is what we have taken over: Student Council, Environmental Club, Senior Leadership Committee, NOW (Give it up Tori, you know its true), Pat's house, Presidio Bowl...hell, the whole Presidio, GijF3n SPAIN, (no Matt, not France), Canada, Small porti of Mexico, the radio station, the airways, Ocean Ave. McDonald's, 7-11, Market St. electronic stores, Portland, the West Side, La Tacqueria, El Toro and various other burrito restaurants, KFC-TacoBell, large off-shore holding companies and a bunch of other stuff. There are very few things which we have failed to do, mainly... Jessica Bancroft, ah, but t is just the beginning. Who would have thought that such a motley crue of ten or so guys could do so much in four years? I never would have. Someday when Townies complete the quest for global domination there will be museum established with highlights of our escapades., Here are a few that I can remember. Freshman Year: I think that the first signs of o power might have been freshman orientation when I won the sweatshirt with that gather the information game. The only reason I won was because I got all the answers from your sheets. It was that kind of resourcing that would help us become the powerhouse that we are. Another early sign might have been Spanish class, where Charley, Taylor and I used o incredible Spanish skills to kick some Sophomore and Junior ass. Other memorable things: McDonalds E-Block, Street Fighter, 3DO, Q-Zar "Hey check out Tori.", the bench outsi the language office, the introduction of Charley, Taylor and DK, "Whose that funny lookin soccer player guy?" "Oh that's Tolve.", Magic: The Gathering (for losers), Alec Lee and learning that one man can't hold us down, Chic-Street-Man, Beeper Tang eating dirt, lacrosse-mania, Megala, and "What happened to Charley?" By the end of Freshman year we were united. We had goals, Tori, and we had an identity, the Townies. We were still misunderstood as pathetic group of guys from an all boys school who lusted after Tori, (partially misunderstood) bu we had begun our journey. Sophomore Year: "Smithers, do you have the jade monkey? Excellent, its a falling into place." That quote pretty much sums it up. With Charley's return from France we had the whole unit together. Tolve developed into the picture and we all grew a lot. Pat lost his height thing and ventured into unknown and forbidden territory, named Kyla. We learned a lesson for the ages, s away from demented, ugly, perverse freaks. That would never be forgotten. We got a car, and Matt became a stick shift guru to Eric and a ride to McDonalds for everyone else. Then the most importan even to that point happened, Poker. From the first night at Willie's house we knew we had hit gold. The slick table and the icy cold refreshments signaled the beginning of a legacy. While I took money from you guys left and right, we developed the Townie mentality that would shape us into the group that we are today. Another memorable and telling event was the night that we went to Aptos play-ground and beat the hell out of those little kids in kickball. Many would have said that it was cruel t beat up on little kids, but we knew better. Other memories: Pat being a junior guy, Eric as Mr. Smooth, Triple Decker Pizza, torturing Allison, cooking with Profa, making fun of midgets, Emu the fire at the beach and digging the "Hole", frisbee frisbee frisbee and my street getting paved, E-Blo free. But most importantly there was the triple feature and what happened afterwards. My immacu late conception gave way to one of the most talked about events in Townie history, Willie and Tori. W would have known the millions of effects that this odd pairing would have. Willie, the man? Who would have guessed? As the saying goes, Willie took one big step for himself and one giant leap fo the Townies. People began to pay attention to us at the end of the year due to them and we decided th we should respond, and respond we did. Sophomore-Junior Summer: While not everyone embarked on our first journey to a foreign land, the few, and the proud who did forever changed the Townies. It was clear as everyone stumbled through the foreign streets the first night that Townies were changing. Some things to remember: Willie an Taylor's haircuts, the chick on the beach, toilet paper, the roof, those crappy small rooms and our suite, the ravers, bubbles, dancin in the subway, being the tallest people there, tho drugged out people who brawled in front of out hotel, Burger King, "Un cuarto de libra con queso", Juan, pool, Sangria, the pool bar, the mormons, Eric in Japan at Nintendo Headquarters, Charley's women, the beach, Sam Yard's pool skills. Spain was our greatest endeavor yet, and we returned triumphant. I know that Juan and friends will always remember those tall-baggy-jeans wearin guys from the US and I know that I will never forget them. Junior Year: Our reign begins. Out of the damp lower hallway and into the light We quickly took over our corner and using everyone's driving abilities we purchased more McDonald's food and burritos than anyone in the history of Lick. We also left a bigger mess in that hallway than anyone ever had. Willie and Tori were as dysfunctuntional as ever and we were tiring of their routine. It was clear that a change was coming and it did. O that fortuitous night at Pat's house when we learned that Willie had left for Pat's house twenty minutes ago, a legend was spawned. Willie and Jessica sat helpless as water bags pelt the truck from all sides and headlights exposed the fogged up windows. The details are that of legend but the memories are the greatest and most vivid that I have. As we peeled aw from our greatest accomplishment we gave birth to the sabotage. While no other sabotage would ever equal that night's memories of many others will never leave me. Other things remember: bowling, stealing Pat's sodas, Willie and Tori, Willie and Gina, Willie and Becca, Willie and Jessica, Willie and Becca...you get the picture, that first weekend at Tori's house, burning the cabbage patch doll, driving everywhere, the Black Car, the Headlands, water balloons and us kicking the seniors' asses, "Free Eskimo", bar-b-ques, night frisbee Eric's ACL, the parachute guy's fiery demise, sandcastles, the Red Truck, burrito runs, Pat's pool table, Willie's new house, Mark Flores lying, putting Willie (Adams) in the trunk, Giants' games, the Dodger brawl, the Monkees, Mario Kart, Willie's attic, the fireworks show and Pat's limo-driver friend, the beer guy and Matt, piling into Gardiner's car, the Am White sentence, Lock (long hair guy), eating 30 pounds of food at Charley's house, the Awesome Blossom, frisbee, the beach, breaking the monitor at Pat's house, U2, Dan Bunke getting tied up, Amber's party, Mike and Pat hittin the party scene, Greg Morse breakin down doors, waterbags, the troll. I know that there was a lot of other stuff that I probably should have put down but I'm only one man and that's about all that I remember. I wish that I could have chilled in the hood for senior year but I had to establish a Townie followin in Portland and well, you know the rest. Here are a few personal shout-outs (just like wild 107 or wild 94, whatever) Eric - You're my main man. Know that I have the utmost respe for you and have had the best time with you over the last 7 years. Whether talkin about Katherine (ugly tall chick) or just cruisin in the black car, I have always had a good time wit you. I will never forget you and Charley drivin up here to see me in Portland and I don't think that you know how much it meant to me. I'm really glad that you didn't go to Urban. Charley - You have been one helluva a friend and don't think that I haven't appreciated your presence. You and I were always the rational ones and we never got mixed up in the confusing scene that is Lick. We had some awesome discussions about other people and how messed up they were and I will never forget the burning parachute guy. Willie - Who would have guessed that we would become such good friends? I always thought of you as that bony guy with blond hair at Town and look what you are now...OK maybe that doesn quite make the point, but you have become a really cool person and I have always enjoyed hanging with you, talking about your various dysfunctional relationships, or watching so dumb movie with you. Gardiner - While we never chilled as much as we should have, the times that we have spent together have been some of my favorites. All those movie premieres, football games, or hours spent hanging out were awesome and I have developed a great deal of respect for every aspect of your character. You are a true role model, not only of an Eagle Scout, but of a friend. Pat - Even though you're kinda short now you're still pretty cool. These last 4 years have been chill, (throwout Kyla) and I think that night a your house breaking ice and throwing it at your neighbor's house is one of my favorite memories. Its been a lot of fun playing pool at your house, drinking your sodas, and laughing at the dysfunctional wonder that is your family. I am still amazed that you have come out so normal (maybe not that normal, but pretty close.) Matt - I have had a lot of fun watchin you develop from the clumsy big guy called Matt, into the smooth, stick-shift-drivin woman's man , soccer player supreme that is "Too Love." I have always liked and respected yo and I am proud to call you a Townie and a friend. Taylor - You helped me realize that midgets can do more that play ewoks, circus freaks, and elves, as you have always been a goo friend who I can talk to for rational opinions and homework help. Megan - In the two years that I have known you have been one of my favorite people. I love you like a sister, and hope that I have been as good a friend to you as you have to me. Becca - Ever since E-free you have been one of my favorite sources for deep conversations. I value your friendship as much as anyone's and I am glad that we have stayed friends despite the crazy stuff that goes on in the rest of our class. Allison - Last but not least, my homegirl from Commodor Sloat (wassup?!). Even though we have never been in the same group of friends we have always kept our elementary school thing goin' and while we used to kid about being family think that we are pretty damn close now. Never forget Italy, Willie and I torturing you, and the fact that you liked me in 5th grade (Be proud damnit!).That's all I've got to say. If I didn't mention you don't' take it personally, just know that I don't like you. (I'm kidding for Christ's sake!) I spent the best three years of my life at Lick and it wouldn't have been possible without all the people who make it up (Freshman excluded). You guys have all been great friends and I will never forget it.
Thanks! Ian

...your laughter drops
like a hawk from a stony tower. It's true:
daughter of the sky, you slit the world
and its green leaves,
with one bolt of your lightning:

it falls, it thunders: the tongues of the dew,
the waters of a diamond, the light with its bees leap. And there where a long-bearded silence had lived, little bombs of light explode, the sun and
the stars,

down comes the sky,
with its thick-shadowed night,
bells and carnations glow in the full moon,
the saddlemakers' horses gallop.

Because you are as small as you are, let it rip: let the meteor of your laughter fly: electrify the natural names of things!
